

Friendship Force walk to the Tulips

What a lovely surprise when we got to the Wellington Railway Station. There was a lovely group ready to go for our monthly outing. The weather over the weekend had not been the greatest, but the sun came out and the rain stopped just for us. Everyone chatted happily to each other as we walked along Featherston Street. We took over the centre of the cable car and carried on laughing and joking. We took a path down to the tulips that several members had not walked before so that was great. We were all delighted to see the tulips had not been blown away by the strong winds. We wandered around admiring them and commenting on the effort of the gardeners. The rose gardens were bare except for Mum and her ducklings. We carried on down through the cemetery to the Backbencher for a well earned hot chocolate and other beverages. It started to rain just as we left to go home.
